'Something to Sing About' (STSA) : Is a Global Choir of Cancer Survivors founded in 2012 by Dr Paul Donnellan, Consultant Oncologist in Galway and Castlebar hospitals. As a doctor he is convinced of the therapeutic value of music and singing for cancer patients. STSA promotes ongoing support especially from fellow-survivors by bringing cancer patients together on a regular basis to sing songs and have a bit of fun. There are already seven STSA centres rehearsing weekly in Castlebar, Westport, Ennis, Ballinasloe, Galway, Belmullet and Achill with others about to start in Tuam, Galway Clinic, Sligo, Mullingar, Cork, Dublin etc. If you would like to join or help to set up another centre or require further information on 'Something To Sing About' please go to: www.stsa.ie
